

Table 14

Organising bodies responsible for initial teacher training

- National Ministry: The Ministry of Education in each country which determines and funds broad policies dealing with the 'national interest'.
- Federal Ministry: State Ministry of Education, responsible for education in the specific state/province.
- Statutory body: Body independent from government which was established by legislation.
- Non-departmental public body: Body set up, sometimes under statute, to carry out specific functions on behalf of government. However, although non-departmental public bodies are government funded, they are not government departments or part of government departments.
- Local authority: Regional education headquarters; the local arm of the Ministry of Education.

Notes

- Ireland The Ministry is responsible for the standards for obtaining a teaching qualification for primary education, while a Statutory Body (The Registration Council for Secondary Teachers) is responsible for the standards for secondary education. Individual universities are responsible for the content of the teacher training curriculum for primary education, while a Statutory Body (The Registration Council for Secondary Teachers) has overall responsibility for the secondary teacher training curriculum. In 2006, a Teaching Council was established in Ireland. Its role includes promoting teaching as profession, the continuing professional development (CPD) of teachers and the regulation of standards in the profession.
- Australia While the States and Territories retain control of their own education systems, a national education and training framework is emerging through the Ministerial Council on Education, Employment, Training and Youth Affairs (MCEETYA), including the 2003 National Framework for Professional Standards for Teaching.
- USA Although, most responsibility lies with the federal ministries in the individual states, to qualify for certain funding strands, states must meet certain national requirements.
